Affinity Engines Closes $4 Million Round of Venture Funding from Storm Ventures

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif., May 31, 2006 – Affinity Engines, Inc., the leading provider of trusted social networking solutions for membership organizations, today announced that it has raised an additional $4 million from Storm Ventures. The company will use the investment to expand its marketing and sales efforts.

Affinity Engines' customer list includes 49 membership organizations, including Stanford University Alumni Association, Dartmouth Association of Alumni, University of Florida, and Wharton Graduate Association, offering over seven million users access to secure and trusted Affinity Engines social networks.

The investment in Affinity Engines reflects Storm Venture's strong belief that the social networking category represents a major opportunity. "We have been watching the online social networking category take shape and feel that Affinity Engines is poised to be one of the leaders in this growing market," said Tae Hea Nahm, general partner of Storm Ventures. "We believe that the customer momentum Affinity Engines has achieved over the last year together with its trusted approach to social networking will drive the company's continued success."

“Partnering with prominent universities to provide users with a trusted experience creates long term value and is a model that can extend beyond the higher education market,” said Steve Loughlin, president and CEO of Affinity Engines. “This investment strengthens our war chest so we can continue to innovate our technology and effectively build our business.”
